Deferred Recoupment Agreement

The parties to this settlement agreement are: the claimant – [REDACTED] represented by the Washington Law Center per Spencer Parr, attorney; Claim Number [REDACTED], Docket Number [REDACTED], and the State of Washington Department of Labor and Industries, represented by the Office of the Attorney General per [REDACTED], Assistant Attorney General.

In order to resolve and terminate the dispute between [REDACTED] and the Department of Labor and Industries, in Docket Number [REDACTED] regarding the order of [REDACTED], the parties are entering into this agreement;

The claimant asserts that she was injured on [REDACTED], while engaged in employment subject to the provisions of the industrial insurance laws. Time loss compensation benefits were paid during the period of [REDACTED] through [REDACTED] based on the representation that the worker was temporarily totally disabled. The Department of Labor and Industries ultimately determined that the claimant's asserted condition is not the result of an industrial injury and is not an occupational disease, and rejected the claim, thereby resulting in an overpayment of benefits in the amount of $[REDACTED]

The claimant acknowledges that she owes the Department of Labor and Industries the overpayment of $[REDACTED]. Claimant agrees to dismiss his appeal under Docket Number [REDACTED]

The parties have agreed to defer the full amount of this overpayment to deduction from the final, if any, Permanent Partial Disability Award under this claim, or any future time loss benefits or accident fund benefits payable after the first closure of this claim, under this or any other industrial insurance claim that the Department of Labor and Industries, acting pursuant to Title 51 RCW, may adjudicate in the future. The Department of Labor and Industries will not pursue collection of the overpayment, other than through offset as discussed above.

The Department of Labor and Industries may offset, as set forth in RCW 51.32.240, against compensation and/or other benefits, except treatment benefits, which are payable or become payable under this claim, [REDACTED] or any other industrial insurance claim the claimant has or may have in the future with the Department of Labor and Industries or with any self-insured employer under RCW Title 51.

The Department of Labor and Industries also may review your case in the future, and resume collection efforts if your circumstances have changed.

By signing below, the claimant, [REDACTED], agrees to all of the above terms of this settlement agreement.
